Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

3. Claims ³⁷~~3~~-41 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Langer et al.

Langer teaches the claimed apparatus having a computer (13) that utilizes a CAD program (Col. 2, lines 47) and a rapid prototyping apparatus (Col. 1, lines 10-21), specifically a stereolithography device.

Langer fails to teach cured structure shapes.

The creation of the product for joining together to form a mold and means of injecting material between the molds is an intended use of the apparatus. Taking the product of the rapid prototyping apparatus and combining the products to form a cavity and with sealable mating edges does not further limit the structural claims of the apparatus.

The CAD designs when inputted into the computer system will allow for creation of various structures by the rapid prototyping apparatus depending CAD design data files. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Langer with different designs in the CAD files for implementing into the computer because it allows for creating various designs as desired by the user.

4. Claims 37-41 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hull.

Hull teaches the claimed apparatus having a computer (28) that utilizes a CAD program (Col. 2, line 30) and a rapid prototyping apparatus (Col. 2, lines 37-48), specifically a stereolithography device.

Hull fails to teach the cured structure shapes.

The creation of the product for joining together to form a mold and means of injecting material between the molds is an intended use of the apparatus. Taking the product of the rapid prototyping apparatus and combining the products to form a cavity and with sealable mating edges does not further limit the structural claims of the apparatus.

The CAD designs when inputted into the computer system will allow for creation of various structures by the rapid prototyping apparatus depending CAD design data files. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Langer with different designs in the CAD files for implementing into the computer because it allows for creating various designs as desired by the user.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed 11/25/2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The rapid prototyping machine creates cured structures that are then used to create a pressure intensifier by joining the two structures together. The shaped cured structures are products created by the apparatus and are intended use after the creation.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
